one's thoughts

Dear Lisa
Let me think, how long have you and I been friends? Can you believe we met 5 years ago. I'll never forget it. Lisa-youre a crazy and wild girl but I stil love you tons! You always make me laugh when I'm in a bad mood and I love your sense of humor. I wish you and Larry the best of luck always. Aren't you glad we both got into Weinstein the best chapter in the council?! I'll never forget all the times we cracked up and started laughing on the floor. Or how about the time your smoke alarm went off and we thought it was a burglar. all those times were great! This summer or opinions we can go druing around since I'll be druing. I know we'll always be friends. By the way, you're a LUNATIC (Ha-Ha) I love you tons,

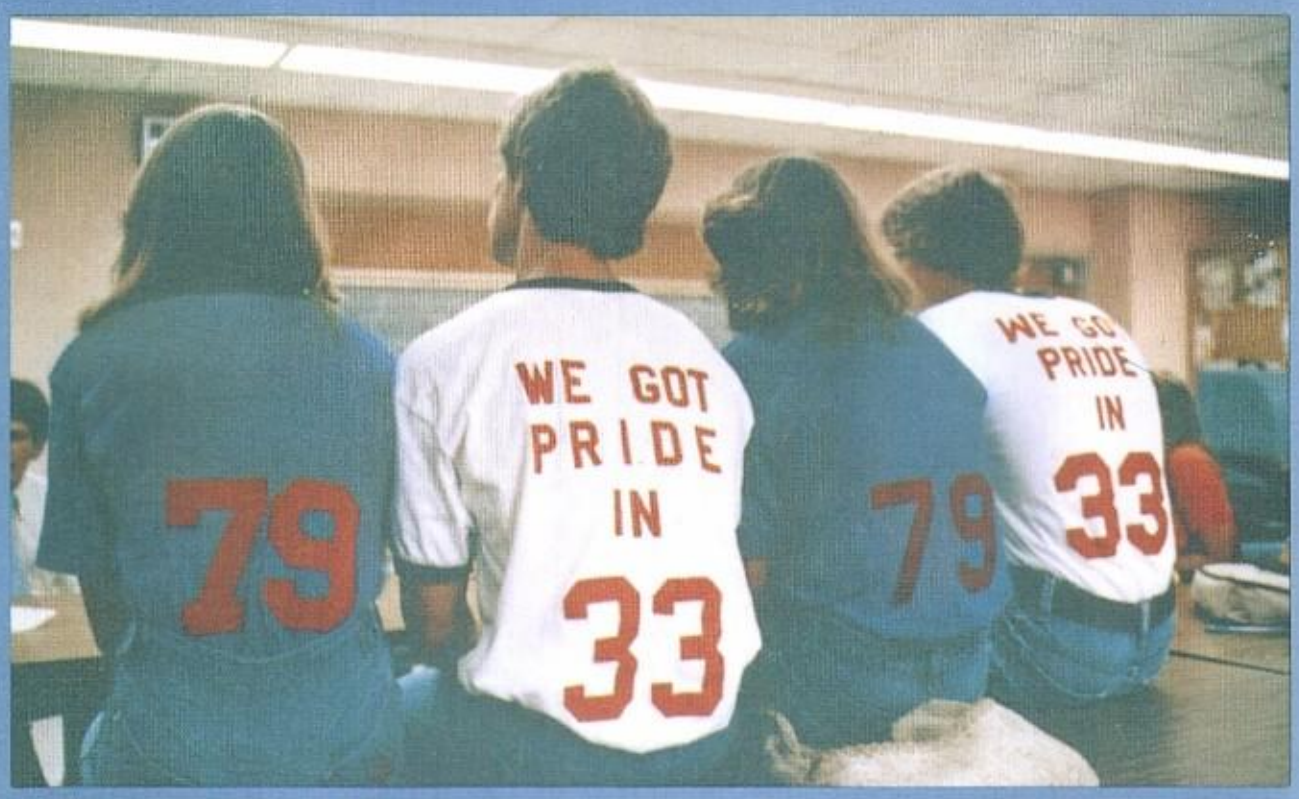
Carey '78

by words



or gestures;

Lisa,

wow, can you believe that the year is already almost over? I am so glad we get to be such good friends, maybe we will have some classes together next year. Well, I guess when Danny and Larry are gone ~~we~~ cool! we will have to plug like crazy!

an outward indication

I really can't begin to tell you how much I treasure our friendship. Larry is really a lucky guy to have you for a girlfriend. L-E-W-I-S turtles are #1. Just think how fun it would be to have "Lewis" all to ourselves for a whole year. I

of some feeling wonder who would get it if we didn't?

well, lets

. . . a special year

The 1977-78 school year will not be soon forgotten. It held many experiences for us all, each of them contributing to our growth. The joys and sorrows, victories and defeats, the friendships we made — these combined to make a memorable year.

There were some disappointments, but they were more than outweighed by the many good times. Football season brought the excitement of pep rallies, games, and Homecoming. Throughout the year, our days were brightened by gifts, flowers, and surprises from friends and secret "brothers" and "sisters." Among other activities, there were dances, plays, and the Homecoming Revue that added to the year. For the Seniors, there was the magic of Prom, and finally, graduation.

The year has now passed, leaving with us many memories. Each of us will cherish our own special moments, but for everyone it was a year to remember.

. . . a year of learning

The first week of school brought with it many confused sophomores, schedule foul-ups, and a mad rush on the counselor's office as students tried to drop courses and change classes. After awhile things fell into place, and Pearce students got back into the old routine once more.

a. James Cude wonders, "When did they put the answers in this book?" b. "I wish they had Kleenex in this school!" thinks Greg Zick. c. Is it soup yet?

a. Senior guys can't wait for the dance. b. These Wranglers think the jocks are something to clap about. c. Julie Hughes plays a supporting role. d. "I forgot the music!"

. . . a year of spirit

Students displayed their Mustang spirit in many ways this year. Classes competed against each other at pep rallies and during the activities of Homecoming. Together, students supported Pearce at football games and other athletic events. Through much hard work and dedication, the Cheerleaders, Pacesetters, and Mighty Mustang Band played major roles in boosting school spirit. Participation in clubs, sports, and various organizations showed spirit and served to unify the student body even more, strengthening Pearce and making this year THE year for spirit.

a. "I hope that new extra-dry formula works!" thinks Beth Brooks. b. Snow in September?

b.

c.

a. Donna Waynant takes the Pepsi Challenge. b. "What do you mean, my job looks boring?" c. Vince Margiotta exhibits one of his many talents.

. . . a year of work

Faced with continually rising inflation, many Pearce students went to work to earn their spending money. Jobs ranged from food service to construction work to sales. However, no matter what the job, all agreed on one thing — the hours were too long and the pay was not enough.

a. "The customer will never know," laughs Mitch McCasland. b. "I didn't know we sold THAT here." c. "Hey, don't tell me how to sack my groceries," exclaims Jack Hayes.

a. "If you're going to propose, get on both knees and do it right," demands Julia Clinger. b. "No, you can't have a bite," sniffs Stacy Ogier. c. Diane, did you lose your balloon? d. Susan St. John flashes her Ultra-Brite smile.

. . . a year of togetherness

Throughout the year, we came in contact with many different people, finding each individual unique. Friendships were formed that will last long after high school days. Every acquaintance broadened our experiences — each person leaving with us some lasting impression of himself. Through our relationships with others, we grew as individuals.

a. No, Jean — the straw goes in your mouth. b. David and Laura laugh at the prospect of eating cafeteria food. c. "Now all we need are the books," thinks Joe Grant.

a. Do that again and I'll break this pumpkin over your head. b. Jere, save the sit-ups for athletics. c. "If he doesn't notice me now, he never will," thinks Monica Hazen. d. Future Olympic gymnasts?

. . . a year to remember

Though the days followed a routine pattern, there was always something happening to break what otherwise would have been monotony. Somehow we always found something to laugh about, and even the bleakest days were not without their bright spots.

These moments, whether planned or unanticipated, combined to make the '77-'78 school year special . . . a year to remember.

captains lead

Under the coaching of Diane Dawson, the girls' gymnastics team had a good year. The captains, Andie Hennes and Mary Wier, led the girls in forming good sportsmanship and friendships between team members and with other teams. In the first meet, held at Boswell High School, the girls took first place ahead of Richardson.

The men's team, coached by David London, showed the effectiveness of many long hours of workouts at every meet in which they participated. At the Boswell meet they came in second place, behind Boswell.

This year has been the Boys Cross Country Team's best year ever. Randy Smith, one of the team's most outstanding members, said, "I feel that our hard work and persistence has paid off with 57 trophies in just six weeks. We have an undefeated season and are still moving strong." The boys started workouts in the summer and it seems to have really been the extra motivation they needed.

"A year in chemistry is a discovery process. You find out that those tiny cells you saw under the microscope in biology are made up of even smaller particles called atoms. You learn answers to questions like: why does silver tarnish? and why does ice float? You discover that a mole is not only an animal but a group of atoms; that there really is a use for all those graphs, logs, and equations you learned in algebra; and that pH is not just a term made up for T.V. commercials.

There are some fun discoveries in lab — the pop of hydrogen gas burning, the smell of banana flavoring, and the titration of vinegar to find the amount of acid in it. In addition, there are also some "survival discoveries," like not spilling acid on yourself, lighting a Bunsen burner without a meter high flame, and getting through lab without breaking your thermometer.

Some of these discoveries seem forgotten but are really etched in your mind. They come flooding back when you run into your lab partner and say, 'Remember that day in chemistry when we . . .'"

"to make a long story short . . ."

"Like many teachers, I have a tendency to talk too much. I also have a favorite saying: 'To make a long story short.' Two years ago, a group of students in my third period class got the idea that I was becoming repetitious with my saying and counted the number of times I said it in a nine weeks period. At the end of the nine weeks, they presented me with a beautiful plaque stating, in Old English Script, exactly how many times I repeated, 'To make a long story short . . .' a song of clack

"Singing typewriters, rubber cement, a persistently ringing telephone, and a myriad of grease pencils, rulers, and layout sheets — another deadline has arrived for the annual and newspaper staffs.

Working from early August through the final day of school, journalism students produce ten newspapers and a 336-page book. Both publications are totally student produced from conception of an idea through stages of writing, layout, and photography.

Staff members learn not only writing and production techniques of journalism, but how to function in and contribute to a group. This, plus a sense of pride in providing the school with items of real permanence more than compensate for the hassles and headaches which also accompany the job."

living languages

"A student who studies a foreign language learns vocabulary, grammar, pronunciation, and even influences of that language on his own language. Besides these aspects of the language, he learns about the people who speak it — their customs, habits, and lifestyles. The student might even gain some insight into alternatives to the American way of thinking.

With this knowledge, the student can better understand and appreciate a different country. Hopefully, he can become more tolerant, flexible, and sensitive of other people and their lifestyles by being better acquainted with them through the study of their language and culture. By continuing to emphasize the study of foreign languages in the public school system, the student will be better prepared to face the world of tomorrow."

"The music department at Pearce High School is dedicated to excellence in music. The staff strives to provide as many experiences as possible, in both performing and non-performing aspects of music.

When a student graduates from PHS and has been a member of the band, I hope the student will have gained a sense of excellence and self-reliance. Musically, the student should gain a knowledge of his specific instrument, and an appreciation for music as an art. Beyond the musical aspects of band, a student can gain an understanding of contributing as an individual to a larger group effort and the benefits that can be derived therein. These functions serve as an understanding of the makeup of our American society, and can effectively prepare a student to successfully assume an adult role in this society."

stewardess to secant

" 'Yes, sir, I do realize we're four hours late and you've missed your connecting flight, and the gravy I spilled will be worn on your shirt to the business meeting, and that the peas were cold, but I do apologize!'

As tests, homework, and pop quizzes pile higher and higher, and the red ink has been drained from my grading pen, I pause to reflect on my past. Yes, the glamour of being a stewardess was there: jetting from New York to San Francisco, meeting celebrities, seeing the sights, shopping at "the" stores, and vacationing in the Caribbean every few months. What more could one want, one might ask. No matter what stars were on board or to which exotic port we were headed, duties were duties and they had to be carried out — so much for socializing with the stars.

Never would I have thought that by being a stewardess I'd be a nurse, doctor, cook, travel agent, garbage carrier, bottle warmer, luggage boy, baby feeder, maid, mechanic, baby sitter, entertainer, and comforter each day and maintain a smile through it all. Nor would I have thought my Thanksgiving dinner would consist of pumpkin pie from Dobbs House in the Indianapolis terminal. Nor would I have thought I'd be watching a packed L-1011 celebrate New Year's Eve three times as we crossed the time zones from Atlanta to San Francisco.

I needed a challenge and certainly a true challenge was met as I completed one physically exhausting day after the other as a stewardess. I learned to enjoy eggs at midnight and spaghetti at 8 a.m.

But reality dealt me a blow and I returned to the profession with which I began: teaching. After all, what fulfillment I receive as that one student bursts out the day before the quarter exam to say, 'So that's what a cosine is!' "

total teaching

"Many times I have overheard high school graduates say, "Oh, I remember Mrs. So-and-So; she was the best teacher I ever had!" But when asked what this "exemplary" teacher had really taught them, the ex-student could not remember. It seems the teacher had dominated the learning process so completely that very little learning had actually taken place.

My goal as a teacher is to so thoroughly teach young people how to reason, think, and make sound mature decisions, how to accept responsibility with confidence and humility, how to be understanding and tolerant, how to lead and how to follow, and how to use the knowledge they possess and have access to, that these experiences will be what they remember rather than the name Mr. Griffin."

on solving problems

"Too many people, upon approaching a problem of any kind, expect a quick, easy answer. Usually such a solution is not possible. A person must learn to analyze the problem, identify the difficulties, break the problem down into shorter, easier problems that are solvable, and then, with logic and reasoning, find a solution. I think math class is the best place for a person to develop good thought processes which enable problem-solving."

Karen Nicholson

hit the lights

"The Pearce Drama Department has grown in the past four years from 60 members to 150. Our curriculum includes five classes of drama and two classes of stagecraft. We encourage the student interested in the professional careers of technical theatre as well as acting.

Many drama students take great pride in the reputation our department has acquired through the years, and work diligently to perfect each aspect of their work. An average of 100 hours of rehearsal time is required for each major role in a fall or spring production. The total amount of time and work put into a production by all cast members is tremendous.

The theatre students are indeed a gifted group of people who are dedicated to entertaining, and their ranks continue to grow."

a "talk" with art

"There are many ways to communicate: we talk, we write, we sing, and we even use sign language. Yet one special way we communicate is through art.

Communication through art is a big part of everyone's life, often taken for granted. It is a boring world without creative thoughts and creations given by artists. Art talks to us and shows us ways to interpret what we see. Art whispers of ways to love people. Art screams about social wrongs. We can escape our problems of today by following the beckoning call of art. Art is visual speech therapy to exercise the mind. Art is a personal way to communicate."

Homer Alexander, are you washing your dishes at school?

seniors achieve high goals

Seniors of '78 set a different type of goal this year; to lend a helping hand to former Pearce senior Mark Allen while still raising money for the prom. Last year Mark lost his legs in a skiing accident. Seniors sponsored a blood drive and a dance in his name.

In order to raise money for the prom, seniors held a disco dance, sold turkeygrams, staged the Senior play, Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court, the Senior talent show, and the slide show. As in the past, seniors stole first place and sweepstakes award in the Homecoming hall decoration contest. Seniors even managed to display their talents at pep rallies by screaming, pounding, and jumping. This year's class worked really hard to reach their goals, and they did it. They helped Mark Allen, raised money for the prom, and had a FANTASTIC time.

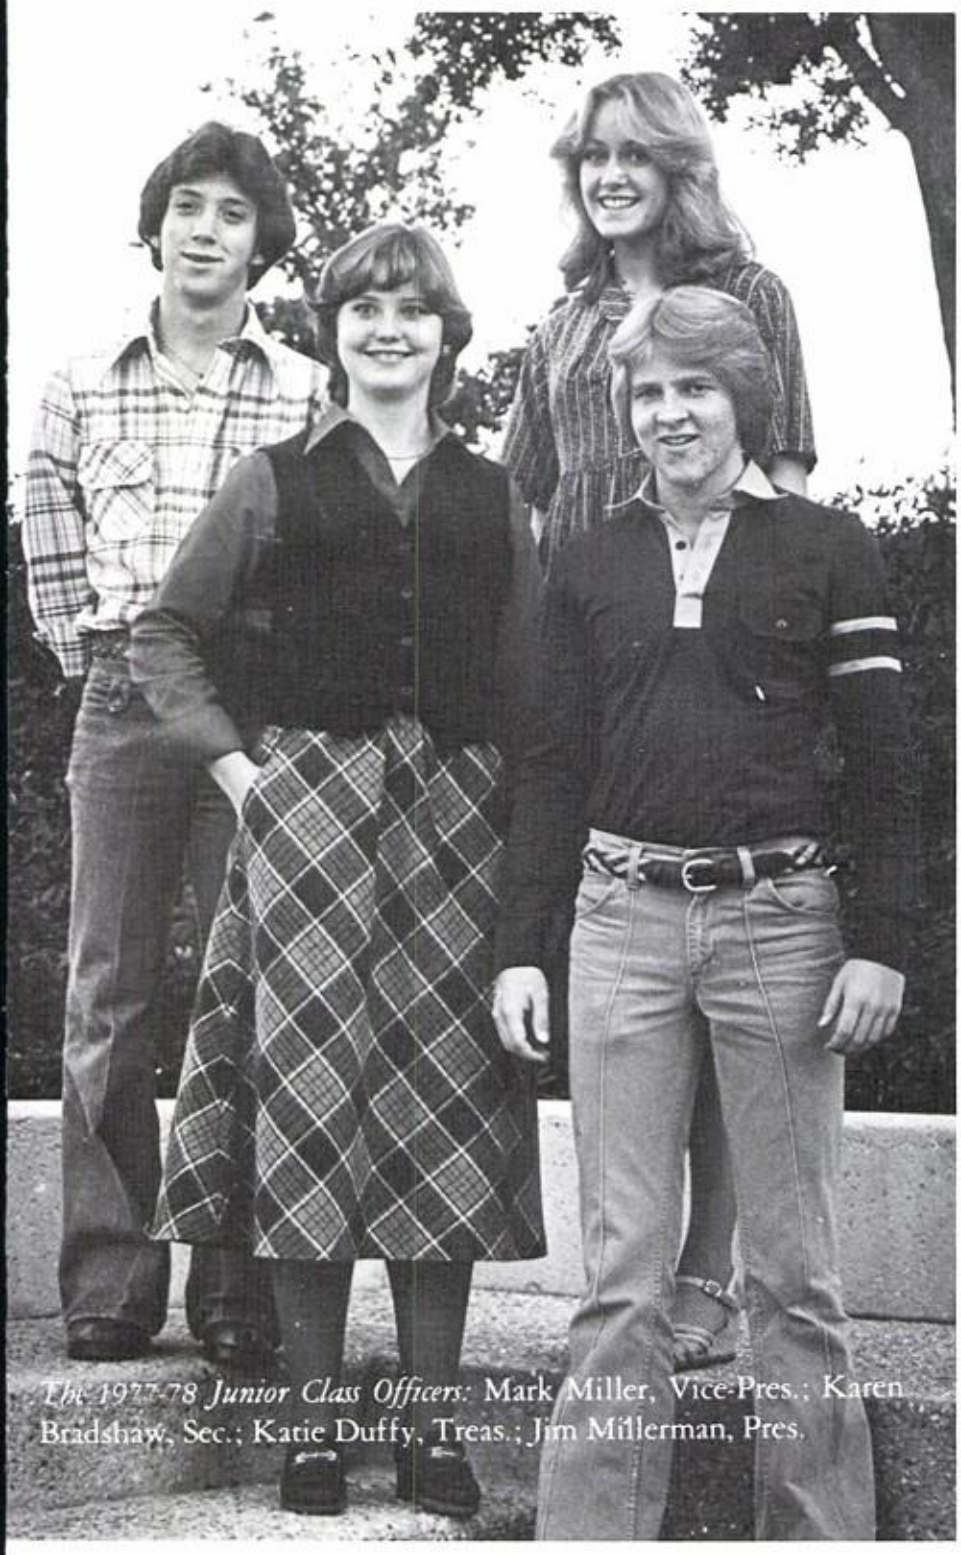
competitive juniors

Juniors demonstrated spirit and enthusiasm for their class this year by winning the spirit stick and sponsoring many successful projects. A group of enthusiastic guys formed the Kan Korps which united the junior class and helped to win the spirit stick. Other juniors helped in the preparation of a Student Directory, or in the sale of corsages for Homecoming. The juniors also won second place for Homecoming hall decorations. Thanks to all who helped make this an exciting and memorable year for the Class of '79!



The 1977-78 Junior Class Officers: Mark Miller, Vice-Pres.; Karen Bradshaw, Sec.; Katie Duffy, Treas.; Jim Millerman, Pres.

Homecoming: a time for both recalling and making memories. From the hours of preparation for the halls, to the last few special minutes of the dance, memories were made. The energy and excitement surrounding Homecoming Day unified the student body. This cohesion of thought gave every person the joy of becoming Homecoming queen with Julie Hughes. The theme was not Halloween, but the experiences we shared of companionship and unity. These are the memories that will last forever.

Pearce again lost to Richardson in the rival game of the year, but it was plain to see that Pearce outshined the Eagles in spirit. The night before the game, students and police protected Pearce High.

The day that followed brought sunglasses, spirit, and the Homecoming Keepsake edition of the Pony Express. The game was colored by banners, cheers, and the Pearce super spirit. Though the game was lost, we were all winners in our own rights.

a focus on student life

Pearce High School has a publication called the Pony Express. It informs the students of not only school happenings, bu also of community happenings. The Pony Express covered both the past and the future throughout the last year; it covered th today and tomorrow of students' lives. One could not only find a good place to eat (picture a.), but also which movies to se after the meal (picture a2.). Sports were always a delight with school sports highlighted (picture b.) and informative article on sports superstars like D. D. Lewis (picture b2.). Yet the school newsmagazine would not be complete without schoo happenings. Clubs were regularly highlighted (picture c.) and school news reported. Student productions also caught spotlight as the paper informed both students and cast members of the plays (picture c2.). But the Pony Express had its lighte side with Sammy Sophomore and an award-winning satire series ("The Fifth Column") that kept up with the dropout musi of Pearce, as well as many other similarly outrageous subjects

A small, select group of girls dedicated to promoting school spirit and supporting the athletes left an indelible impression on Pearce High School. Headed by Julie Hughes, this group sponsored a few dances and organized pep rallies. They led cheers, performed special routines for the sports fans, and served Pearce in many ways. the performance . . .

From the formation of the 1977-78 Pacesetters, they were winners. During summer camp, they won a majority of the awards. The girls' performance on the field won state-wide acclaim for the Pacesetters. Even at Pep rallies their exceptional talent was evident.

In addition to winning, the Pacesetters enjoyed the art they practiced. That enjoyment shone through in school spirit and radiant personalities, warming all around them. The Pacesetters easily proved that they were the best both on and off the field.

. . . and behind the scenes

But to be the best, the Pacesetters had to plan, work, practice, and concentrate many, many hours. No small amount of effort was given; a total commitment of time and energy was necessary. Yet, once all the perspiration had dried, once the muscles stopped aching, once the crowds had gone home, one thing remained: the fulfillment of a job well done.

leading spirit

What would P.H.S. be without its Pep Squad? Probably a less-spirited school. This group of girls worked to promote spirit for school sports and teams. They showed this spirit by decorating each football player's house, sponsoring a dance, and selling candles and candy. This year the Pep Squad continued its support on into the basketball season.

marching musical talents

The Mighty Mustang Band was hit with tragedy at the beginning of the school year with the loss of Bob Hargrove. However, the new band director, Greg Talford, rallied the band and once again Pearce had a top rated band. Marching was not the only activity of the band. Symphonic bands had concerts throughout the year, lightening the air with their music. Magazines, candles, and candy were only a few things the band sold to raise funds. Through the fund raising and concerts, the band once again exhibited "super spirit."

"Our orchestra at Pearce consists of four sections: the woodwinds, the brass, the percussion, and the quintet of strings. Each member of these sections combines to make one of the most beautiful and joyous sounds in today's world. To the serious music student, this organization offers firsthand orchestral exposure and experience that is so necessary to attain future music career goals. The orchestra is also beneficial to other students at Pearce because it exposes them to the quality of great music and composers that otherwise would not have been heard by today's youth. The orchestra contributes not only to the students' development, but also to the appreciative listener."

choir travels

Girls choir gives many girls the opportunity to participate in an organization and show spirit by taking part in many activities. These include UIL contests, all-state, and all-region choir, and the spring trip. The choir had its own booster club made up of supporting parents.

The mixed choir made its spring trip, and went to Corpus Christi to participate in Buccaneer Days; they went to UIL contests and gave many performances. Hard work, dedication, and a lot of enthusiasm gave P.H.S. one of the best choirs it has ever had.

the editor's comments

In order to obtain information from various clubs, the Organizations editor asked two questions of each club at Pearce: "What are your activities this year?" and "Of what value is your club to the students of J. J. Pearce?" Below is Karla Hammer's reply as editor of this year's Mustang Annual.

1. A list of this year's activities:
Put out a financially secure yearbook of excellence; Revive both editor and sponsor after successive heart attacks.
2. A list of awards:
First place overall yearbook of excellence at SMU Journalism Workshop (see trophy in showcase).
3. "Of what value is the annual to the students of Pearce High School?"
None whatsoever, unless you consider vanity a value. Why do students buy annuals? to see themselves. In an effort to satisfy more students this year, all nature scenes, trees, and lockers have been eliminated.

creative writing supplies a strong bond

Two years ago a small group of student writers banded together to form a creative writing club. In the beginning, they were just a group of people trading stories over the lunch table. Then the idea of an official club was conceived. The group drafted Mrs. Linda Tucker as sponsor and put out an announcement. They found that there were other writers who were starving for an audience. They set a day and started sharing their work at informal meetings. They are the Writers' Guild, and their sole purpose is to encourage creative writing.

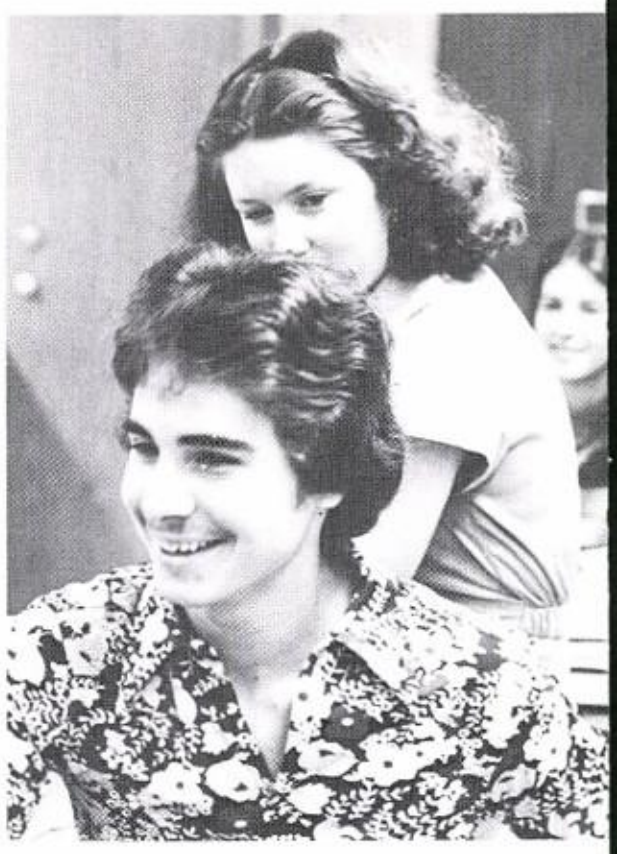
helping to improve the school



a.

The Student Council's main concern for this school year was to maintain a close relationship between the administration and students, and to help improve the school in different aspects. One activity of the council was making homecoming decisions — such as the theme, half time presentations and hall decorating contest. The voice of the students played an active role because it tried to do all that the students wanted.

a change for the better

Change was in the air for the Junior Class Council this year. Rather than electing representatives, it was decided that committee chairmen would be appointed. Under these chairmen, the Junior Class published the Student Directory, sold Homecoming corsages, created new Senior t-shirts, and held a skate-a-thon. Yet these were not the only class achievements; the juniors took second place for best hall decorations at Homecoming and won more spirit sticks than the other classes this year.

soph's aim on target

The Sophomore Class Council's first priority of the year was to organize and unite the Sophomore Class. The Council helped to promote school spirit for the activities at Pearce. The Sophomores also participated in the Homecoming Hall Decorations contest, and sponsored a Senior '80 t-shirt sale. Sponsor Chuck Carona remarked, "The Sophomore Class wants to be an integral part of the activities at Pearce High School. Service to the school is our number one aim."

service through leadership

"This year we have tried to alter the image of the National Honor Society from its being an honorary organization to one whose members make integral contributions to student life at Pearce. Certainly, the largest resource of our organization is people. Our members are leaders in the various departmental clubs, student government, spirit organizations, and athletics. And so, our largest service to the students of Pearce has not been in the various Honor Society activities, but in exemplifying high standards of scholarship, citizenship, character, and service."

local action

Open to any student taking Spanish, the Spanish Club participated in many activities. Members collected money for UNICEF and donated food and clothing to needy family during Thanksgiving. The club also sponsored the carnation sales for Valentine's Day. In the spring, members attended a convention in San Antonio.

french students gather

Approximately 200 students interested in French have participated in several activities sponsored by the French Club this year. In the fall, members visited Neiman-Marcus French Fortnight. Other projects included "Culture Days," when students prepared French food, and a Christmas party for children at an orphanage. Carlene Klein and Molly Ingram sponsored the club.

learning a culture

The German Club participated in many conventions and German dinners during the year. At a German convention held at UTA in the fall, members excelled in scholastic and sport competitions, winning eight contests and first place in mixed soccer. Following a banquet held in December, the club attended the TAGS convention in the spring. According to club president Jere Goostree, "Our group is very active and successful this year, and we have a great new sponsor, Frau Terry."

mathematical goal

"The Mu Alpha Theta is an honorary society in mathematics. We compete against mathematic teams from all over the state. It is this competition that keeps the club from being just a group of people learning math independently. The result of this is that our members gain not only a greater ability in math but more self-confidence to handle themselves in other situations of challenge."

interest in education

Students for Action in Education (SAE) provided students with the chance to help teachers in the lower grades and have a more clear understanding of the responsibilities and obligations of a classroom teacher. Students attended conventions, and met other people with the same interest in teaching. Other activities this year included bake sales, the "Turkey of the Year" award, and monthly meetings.

hece

The Home Economics Cooperative Education is a program which helps students prepare for working. HECE students learned job skills, getting along with others, day-care help, and other essential things like buying a car and handling a bank account. The program is for people who are interested in areas of home economic related courses.

voct

VOCT unites all students enrolled in trade, industrial, technical, and health occupations. The club develops leadership ability through participation in educational, vocational, civic, recreational, and social activities.

pele

Pre-Employment Laboratory Education teaches students child care, and gives its members a chance to participate in service projects for children's organizations. Activities this year included a bake sale, a party for crippled children, a child abuse program, and several speakers.

no apathy

"The Wranglers do what they can to promote spirit in the students at Pearce. Our society is coming out of a period of rebellion against the status quo. This rebellion led to a great apathy among our students. We think that our high school class is returning to the old idea of school spirit. Our job is to help the students realize that it is fun to enjoy the social activities at school."

bringing the culture home

The exchange of cultures between the U.S. and other countries is the main objective of the AFS. Besides bringing foreign exchange students to live and study at Pearce, the AFS encourages its members to study abroad. This year, the AFS sponsored a soccer clinic jointly with the Dallas Tornado. Over 1,800 students attended, while 52 students and 31 faculty members participated.

SAVING TIPS
on electric air conditioning

Central Systems

1. Set thermostat on 78°, or higher.
2. Have equipment checked seasonally by qualified serviceman.
3. Check filter every 30 days. Clean or replace when dirty.
4. Keep furniture, draperies away from air outlets and returns. Clean grills often.
5. Close draperies and blinds to keep out sunlight.
6. Keep fireplace damper closed.
7. Proper home insulation keeps heat out, cuts energy use.
8. Weatherstrip doors and windows. Caulk cracks.
9. Keep windows closed. Open outside doors as little as possible.

Window Units
Follow above suggestions, plus these:

10. Buy units with highest "energy efficiency ratio" (EER). If EER is not on sales tag, ask for it or figure it yourself. Divide "wattage" into "BTU" capacity.
11. Place unit where it'll get as little direct sun as possible.
12. Aim air outlets at lower half of doorway to next room to allow warm air from that room to enter at the doortop for recooling, recirculation.
13. Never vent air conditioner into garage. Ventilation is usually too poor for top performance of your unit.

Conserve electricity and you help conserve one or more of the fuels needed to produce it. Conserve fuels and you help assure that there will be enough to meet essential needs for electricity in the future.

If you would like additional information on conserving electricity, call the Customer Service Representative in the TP&L Office.

Lisa, you are the greatest friend. I have only had really I mean it. I have formally broken relations with Kelli. I can't be in a friendship means to me. I really mean it. I have so many more to tell you but I'm out of paper. I'll start writing around (I don't know) if you're still here. I hope we have some closure when you read this. Thanks for the times you have helped me. I hope you and Jerry are well. I know you have children. Can you imagine Jordan is 17? Where does the time go? I would like to see your daughter. Do you know what I mean? Please write back. Love always, Kelli

P.S. How is Jerry's dad? Please write back. Love always, Kelli

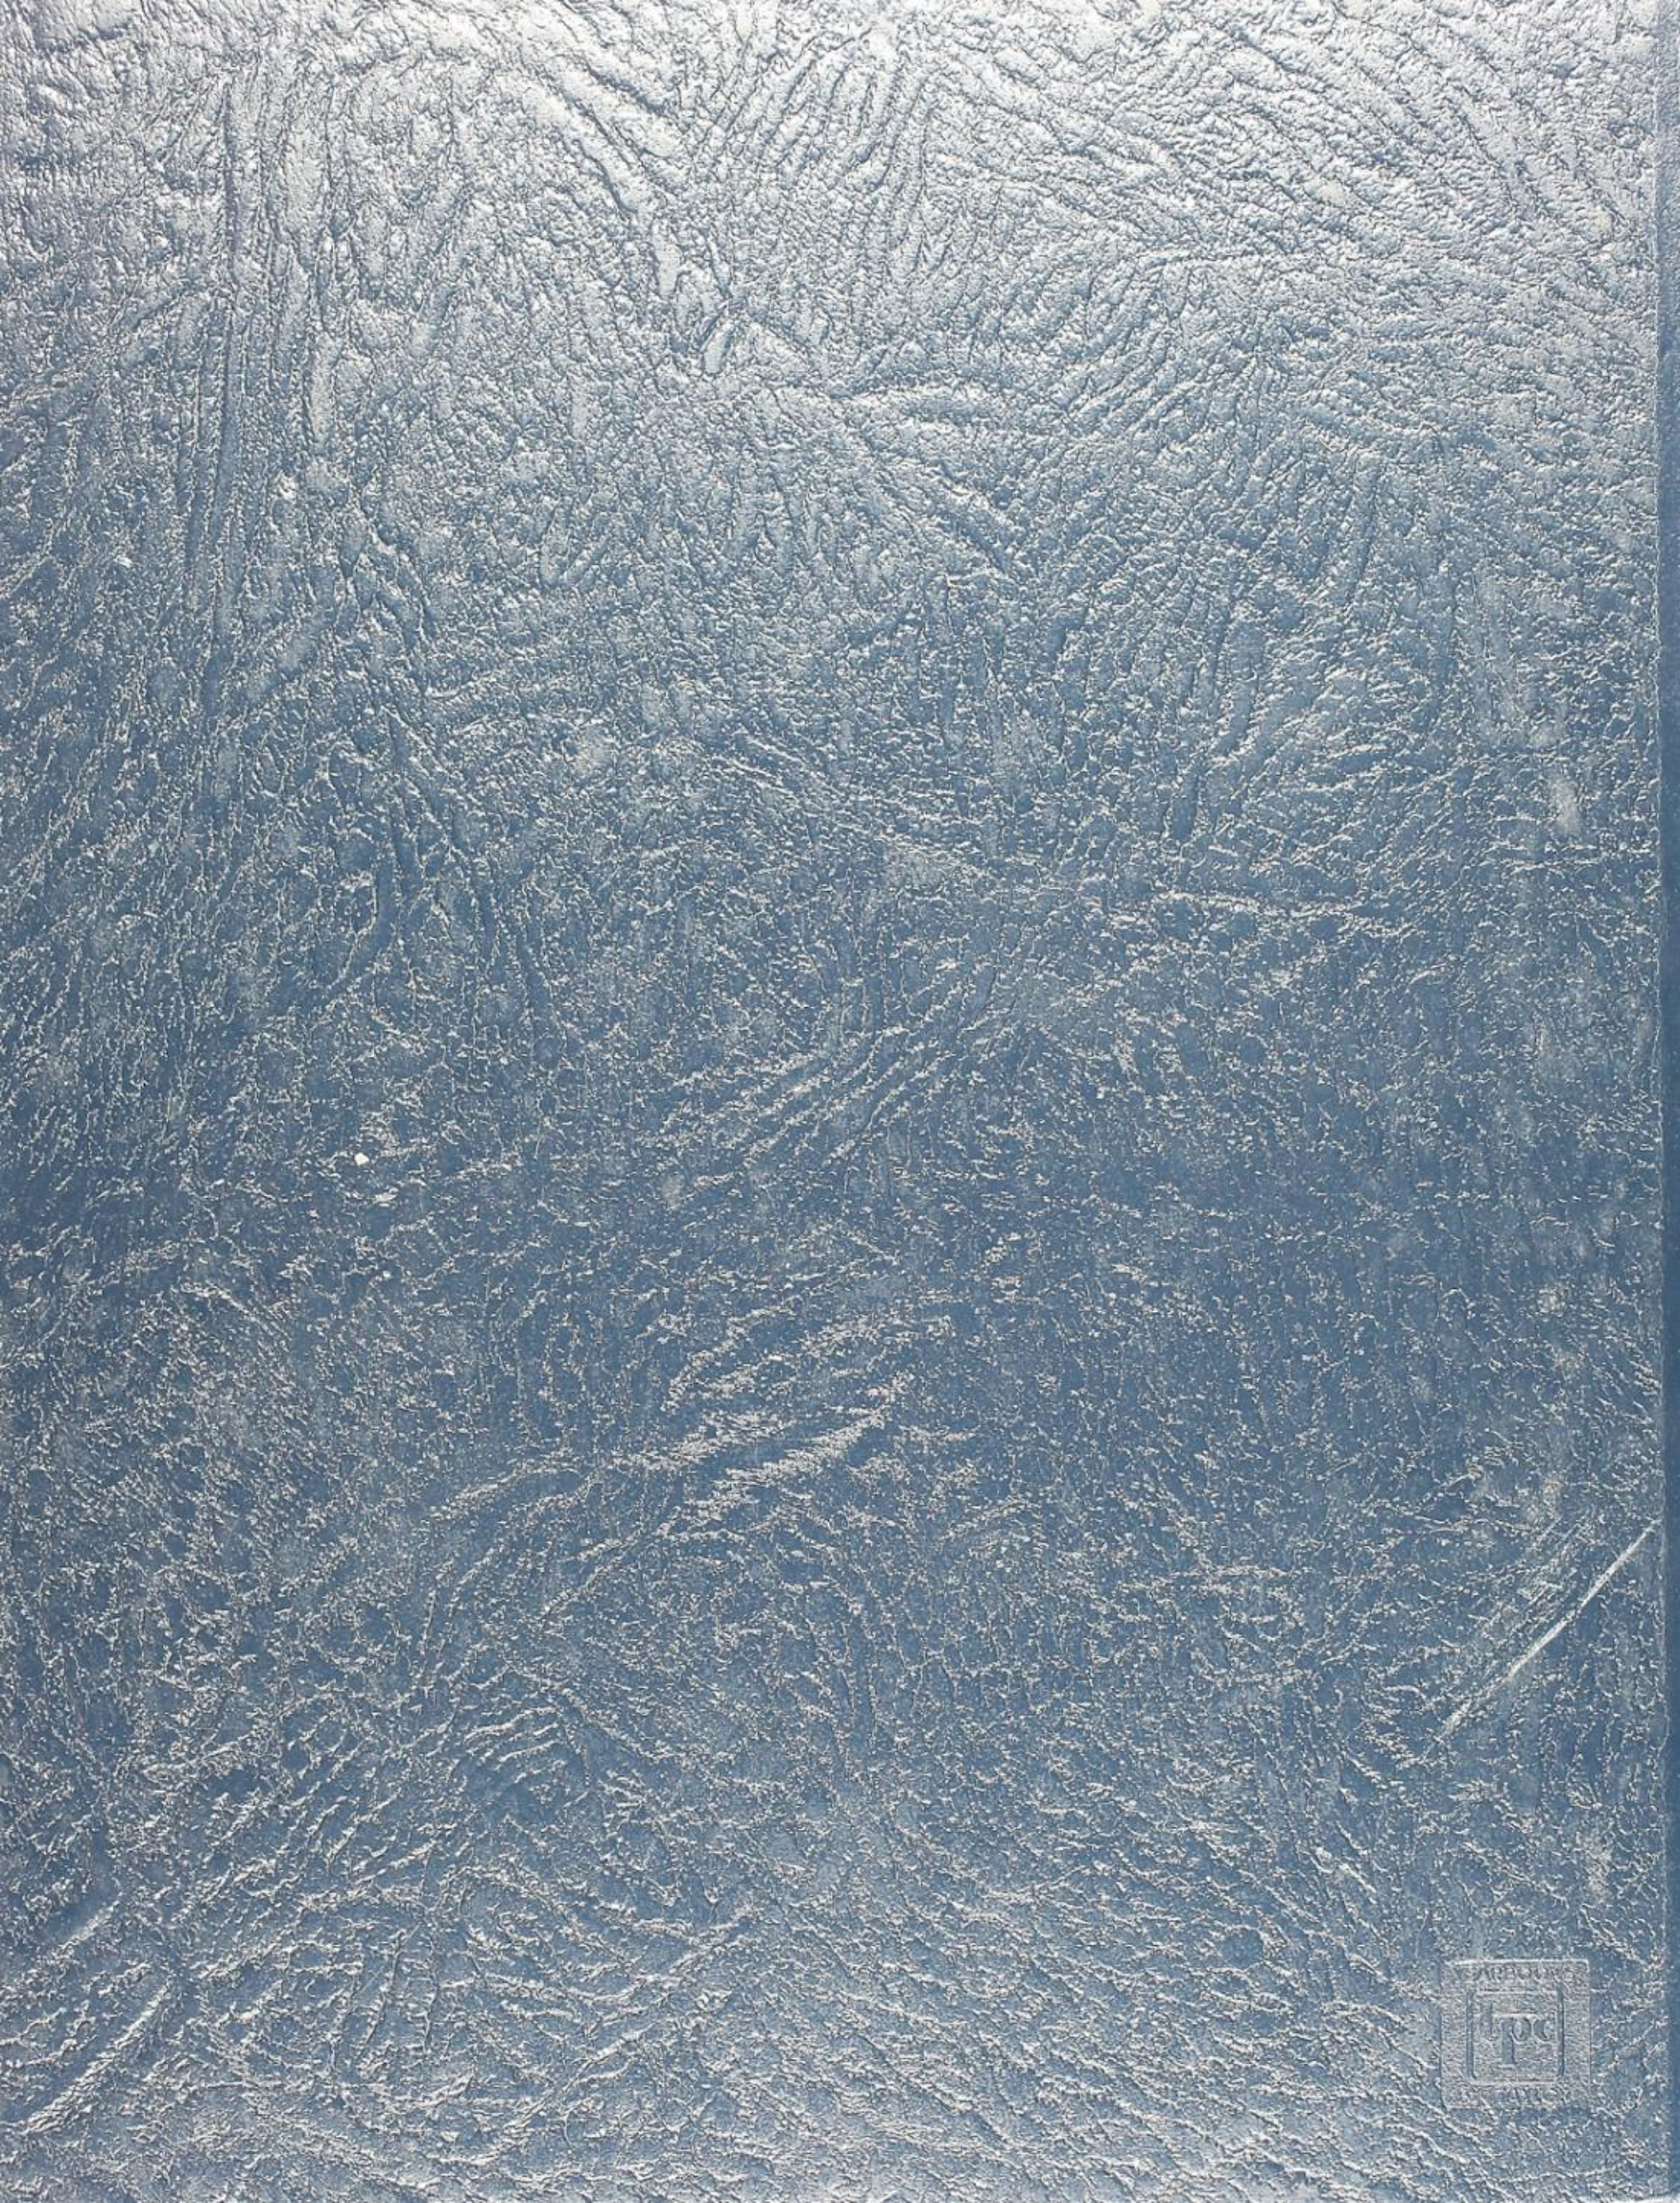
Lisa,

How can one put into words how one feels for another. Through the years we've known you for a very long time, our friendship is growing stronger everyday. The past few months we have spent together have been really great. From tiger antics to the dances we've been to were really dance some Wild and crazy things. Thank Steve Martin alias Daniel Milewicz for that last line. I have a great idea. Let's go to Woods Lake, NOT! Do you really like WBAP country? Let's go to a Ranger game. While in Israel and I can quote a song on this "I'm gonna make you love me" You have left a place in my heart. Always remember and I hope the feeling is mutual.

Love Always,


Lisa
